

We regard doing business as a challenging game...

Are you playing to win?

Business as usual?

Whether your business expanded significantly; you need to change your business model; or your demand changed: there is no such thing as "business as usual". To win in today's dynamic economy, businesses continuously need to adapt to internal and external changes.

Performance through Process

Adaptation to changing factors aims at improving performance to beat competitors. How you need to adapt depends on your business strategy. Achieving your strategic objectives happens through process. Each process dictates what should be done in order to achieve strategic goals.

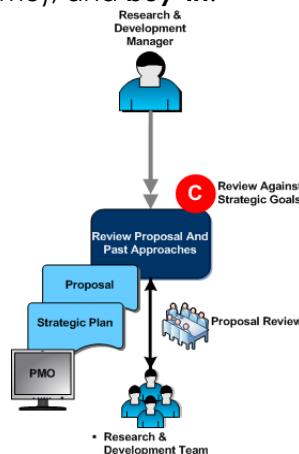

"The single most compelling reason to improve and manage the enterprise's end-to-end business processes is to improve performance and thereby create value for customers and shareholders."

Andrew Spanvi, Executive Coach

VizPro® Process Architecture

To "up your game" you need input from all levels of your organisation, and to implement change you require buy-in from role players.

That's why Pétanque facilitates interactive workshops where role players are invited to share their knowledge to create a best practice process, and to communicate change to play your best match. Vertical knowledge and information share results in process maps (which are created real-time), and buy-in.

It starts with taking the first step

For most enterprises there is no need to overhaul the business overnight. You need to free time and resources to analyse your matches and prepare for the next game, step by step, to achieve structural change. Start with picking the most crucial aspects that could hinder future growth.

Put us to the test

See how a process workshop can equip you to face your business challenges.

Test what we do in a two day pilot project. We are sure that we will give you the required support for your game plan.
